

Quinlin Osadczuk

SUO  ELECTION
2025/2026

Faculty of Arts & Social Sciences Student Representative Candidate

Q

My name is Quinlin Osadczuk, and I'm running for the position of Representative of Arts and Social Sciences for our SUO. I'm a second year International Relations student, and I have always held a deep and vested interest in both politics and public administration. Over the course of the last two years of mine on this campus, I've worked as an executive for the IRSA, a writer for the campus newspaper The Phoenix, and have been involved in several campus clubs as a member, in and out of our faculty.

Having worked all around this campus, I am deeply and personally aware of the bureaucratic walls and lack of support that face us. I know that the clubs of this campus need greater support, not only financially but organizationally: the clubs catering to our faculty are underfunded and rarely able to cooperate or coordinate— not by any fault of their own, but by a lack of cohesion offered by the SUO. What the students of this faculty need is a representative with the resources, connections, and ability to act as a capable community leader who can offer that cohesion. It is my ardent conviction that I can meet those requirements and support this faculty.

As the representative of this faculty, I will not only work towards strengthening our faculty, but I will do everything I can to reverse the slow gutting of the social services available to students, including especially the Pantry. There are problems on this campus — let's fix them.

Platform points

- Establish means for interorganizational communication and coordination for clubs appealing to the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences.
- Work towards cutting excess spending in the SUO, moving money away from social events and towards our student services, like the Pantry and food security programs, while nurturing campus life in order to fill that gap.
- Proactively resolve areas of friction between the SUO and campus clubs by establishing better communication and ensuring better means of sharing funding with campus clubs.
