I have inculcated within me an insatiable drive to keep learning and developing my skills, and have come to be known for this curiosity, passion, and persistence. I have come across a very important lesson of embracing my community as my own, and ensuring that my success doesn't come without their involvement and prosperity. It is very important for me to be a part of something grand and impactful; something that can solve problems and bring a revolution in the unjust practices we have normalized today. I want to create a ripple that leads to change much bigger than me and my future as I owe that much to a society that has allowed me to live a comfortable and happy life. I try my best to be part of initiatives and projects which are involved with creating impact at the bottom-most rung of society. I firmly believe that a healthy and balanced life is one which includes a harmonious medley of several different passions and interests. One of the biggest priorities for me right now is to do my best with the opportunities that are handed to me. My dedication and earnestness are what I believe my teachers and family members appreciate the most about me, and I feel their opinion is the result of my enrollment in positions of responsibilities, be it internships, captainships, or volunteerships. I am proud of the fact that I translate into action everything I preach, and have internalized the fight for social justice.
